Training of health professionals has been key for Spain to be a world leader in organ donations. DTI Foundation want to train professionals from other countries to give to the locals more opportunities to survive.

Less than 10% of the transplants needed in the world are made. The main problem: health professionals have no training in organ donations and transplants. That's why we have created this program for undeveloped countries: to give them more opportunities to survive. The project has 3 phases of training, both in Barcelona and the local country, from less to deeper. Every 650 Teamers, we can pay for a grant for one doctor or nurse.
